INTRODUCTION

Language has been and will remain the key to the world of knowledge. Proficiency with multiple languages has been valued since ancient times. At each stage of the development of society, a certain language played an important role for all mankind. Knowledge of foreign languages opens new doors for a person to improve himself and expand his worldview. If earlier knowledge of the German language was required, today English plays a prominent role.

The ability to speak English competently is closely related to its teaching. The modern age requires a new approach, new methods of teaching foreign languages. To awaken in the child the desire to learn, to acquire new knowledge and activities, while building the further direction of their own education, is the main goal of the current school. The students are tasked with independently studying, finding, analyzing materials, while the main task of the teacher is the right direction. The teacher needs to logically correctly build a lesson so that students are interested in learning English, since the practice of the traditional method, forcing students to cram words, grammar in practice did not give the desired result.

The search for new teaching methods is associated with a lack of motivation among students to learn English. Very often, there is no positive motivation, because when learning a foreign language, students encounter some difficulties and do not learn the material due to their psychological characteristics. Work experience shows that the use of various, modern, fresh sources and means provokes students' interest, increases their motivation to study.

Teaching methods – (from other Greek μέθοδος - the path) - the process of interaction between the teacher and students, as a result of which the transfer and assimilation of knowledge, skills and abilities provided for by the content of training occurs [1,p.85]. It should be noted that the teaching method is a complex, systemic formation, which is characterized by all the features that underlie the classification.

The methodology of teaching a foreign language, in turn, is a set of methods, methods, teaching techniques aimed at mastering a foreign language [2,p.52]. The combination of various forms of work and methods helps to creatively organize the lesson, awakening students' interest in this subject. One of the important tasks and goals of modern methods is teaching communication and mastery of speech means. At the same time, each technique has distinctive features, due to a combination of different methods, techniques and means.

The modern method of teaching English is built on the basis of the classical method of learning foreign languages. However, the psychological aspect, foreign cinema, information technology had an impact on her.

The methods of teaching English used 20 years ago were more of a reproductive nature. Learn the words, read the text, listen to the audio recording, write a letter - this is how the tasks that the tutor gave looked like. Perhaps for this reason, most adults who have studied the language for many years can read and write in English but have difficulty speaking.

Modern methods of teaching English have changed reproductive methods to interactive ones. Today, obtaining knowledge is an interaction between a student and a teacher.

The curriculum is built, first of all, taking into account the age characteristics of students. For preschoolers and younger students, this type of lesson is more suitable, such as a game, a journey, a video, a competition and others. An adult student prefers a classical lesson. For this age, traditional tasks are also suitable: compose a story, do an exercise, read the text, perform listening, and so on. Writing a story allows you to learn how to use active and passive vocabulary, expand vocabulary, and improve conversational speech. Doing exercises helps to learn grammatical material. Reading the text forms not only reading skills, but also immerses in the culture and traditions of the language being studied. Listening - improves understanding of oral speech

Don't be afraid to use techniques for children. Adults also love cartoons and comics, so feel free to offer a wide variety of types and materials.

- Always start with a goal that will be different for each student.
- Describe in as much detail as possible what tasks you need to achieve the goal.

- Talk to your student about your plans for learning.
- Form a personal methodological base: principles, techniques, rules.
- Alternate between independent and collaborative work.
- Think about what resources you will use during class, discuss them.
- Maintain a constant dialogue, be ready to adjust your plans.
- Consider ways to diagnose and monitor student progress.

To learn to speak English, you need a certain system or as it is more commonly called, a methodology for teaching English, which would allow you to solve the tasks as fully as possible, namely: to acquire the skills of reading, understanding speech by ear, speaking and writing in the target language.
