Abstract: In this article, preschool children learn about the goals of skill formation and the mechanisms of their implementation given information. As methodical support for MTT educators and parents can serve.

Key words: mandatory, language, education, important, modern person, young learners.

Nowadays, the demand for language learning is increasing. The age of the student is not important in language learning based on the needs of the times.

"A newly born baby's soul is like a ball of clean cotton." In his opinion, what to write in the child's soul in the style of "top-clean cotton" is entirely up to the adults. Therefore, how a child develops into a person, i.e., what personal qualities are found in him, depends on the experience he gets from life, the life concepts and ideas he gets in the process of communicating with others," says English scientist John Locke.

Teaching a foreign language has become a mandatory part of education in special secondary and higher education institutions, as well as in pre-school educational institutions.

We all want to raise our child as an educated and modern person. That is, we want to see in our children what we could not do ourselves. Children's memory is much better and stronger than that of adults. It is necessary to increase a child's interest in a foreign language from a young age, try to speak it even if there is a mistake.

When children learn a language from the age of 3, it is a very convenient time for them: children of this age differ in terms of memory and speech. The younger the child, the less vocabulary he has and the greater the need for pronunciation.

There are different methods of teaching language to children. For example, if we communicate in a foreign language on the street, at school or at home in our everyday life, we think that it will be good for the child, but it is more effective for older children. Because in many cases, the child's interest in learning this language may disappear in such a situation.

We know that young children are more interested in games, so one of the best ways to learn a foreign language is a game. If the topic being taught is explained or repeated in a playful way, it will help the child to remember it a lot.

Stages of development of language skills of children of preschool age:

- Before starting education, you, like your child, are interested in this language
- Finding a good book for language learning
- Watch a fairy tale or cartoon related to the language your child is learning and explain its meaning.
- Children get tired quickly, so the training process should not exceed 30-40 minutes
- Using the game method during the lesson
- Encourage the child for the correct answer during the lesson
- Explain the topic sitting with the children on the carpet instead of standing up as much as possible.

Based on my work experience, I can say that in the process of language teaching, simply telling children "this is how it is in English (Russian) repeat it or answer what it means in English (Russian)" bores the child. If this method is connected with the game, it will be more interesting for the child. At the same time, their level of activity also increases. Many young children learn what they are taught because they are afraid of their teacher. A child should not be afraid of his teacher, but should respect him and love him. Only experienced specialists should work with preschool children.
