Today, when talking about our country around the world, the expression “New Uzbekistan” is involuntarily mentioned quite often. This means that in recent years we have entered a completely new stage of development, recognition of our achievements.

Reverend President Shavkat Miromonovich Mirziyoyev always emphasizes that Uzbekistan is actively entering the world market, cooperation in all spheres is expanding sharply, and the demand for the study of foreign languages is increasing in this regard. This requires foreign language specialists to work tirelessly with responsibility and confidence in the development of the country. In our country, great measures are being developed to improve the system of teaching foreign languages. The perfect study of foreign languages also leads to the strengthening of the foundations of the third Renaissance period.

Decree No. 5117 of the president of the Republic of Uzbekistan “on measures to qualitatively bring the activities of popularization of foreign languages \ u200b \ u200b of the Republic of Uzbekistan to a new level” was issued. The release of this Decision testifies to the fact that a new system has been established in our country, which will become a solid foundation for the future thorough teaching of foreign languages. In the decision analyzing the problems in the system, it was determined to establish priority tasks to be performed, to provide more responsible tasks to Foreign Language teachers, and to take measures to further improve the system of teaching foreign languages.

Learning foreign languages is the best tool that helps a person get acquainted with a new culture, knowledge, and new friends, enter into communication and grow a worldview. But learning new languages is a much more complex process. But not everyone can overcome these complex processes. Languages widely used in science, technology, art, Tourism, International Communication, and international affairs are advanced languages, and today the teaching of the language as a foreign language in many countries of the world means that the language is studied more so that it can be effectively recognized and taught not only within the limits of its state but also to interact with other nations and cultures.

Even though modern educational methods of teaching foreign languages as a foreign language have been developed, there are specific problems with mastering.

In most cases, students try to speak a foreign language only if they are under the supervision of a teacher. In addition, there is also a shortage of people who constantly communicate in the language studied by students. As a result, it becomes more difficult to learn a foreign language and communicate in this language. Educational materials, in particular books, and audio materials, are tools that help in the learning process. If the student follows the assignments given on the subject of the language being studied through audio and video, he will learn how to pronounce words and sentences. It should be noted that students tend to learn through films, but films include jargon and dialects. Therefore, language learners should be careful

Students in most cases do not take language learning seriously. Problems such as attachment to grammatical rules, and language-related barriers cause students to quench their interest in language acquisition and not take it seriously. I believe that the idea that structured sentences do not need to be grammatically correct for communication to be understood is partly correct and partly incorrect at the same time. Because when a sentence is made colloquially, constantly replacing grammatical rules, fluency in the language is undermined. Students do not always follow and cannot follow the rules they have learned in training. In addition, in non-philological higher educational institutions, students react to foreign languages as a secondary subject. Unfortunately, in most cases, students learn the language at the moment of training. They do not try to learn new words, practice pronunciation independently, writing an essay after class lessons. One of the biggest disadvantages is that when mistakes are corrected, it is often no secret to any of us that the idea that "this is not my language after all" takes up space in the brains of students. And this negatively affects the study of a foreign language. In the current period, the whole world is developing. Interest in people studying the world, and its knowledge is increasing day by day. In its place, our independent Uzbekistan is also facing the world. How many historical places are there in our town? To see such places, to enjoy historical monuments, millions of foreign guests visit our country. In the development of tourism in our country, our youth must master foreign languages and communicate freely in one foreign language. Language learning in Uzbekistan remains one of the most pressing issues. Currently, the interests of our youth in language learning are very strong. One of the main characteristics of language learning is desire, desire, and willpower. But among most of our youth, fear prevails in language learning. I think this is also related to our mentality. In Uzbek families, when communicating with adults, there are cases of maintaining the limit, not getting stuck in circles where adults are sitting, as well as the inability to express one's opinion in some cases. And such cases form the features of self-doubt in the hearts of our children. He cannot make independent decisions. In upbringing, we need to teach our children to express their opinion, and to think freely. This should only be avoided with respect and confidence. Today, popular psychics put forward the idea that the study of foreign languages has the property of changing the human worldview, albeit partially. Under the study of foreign languages, an opportunity arises to get acquainted closely with the lifestyle, mentality, and worldview of that people.

Today, the main part of language learners is made up of those in the age range of 17-35 years. A foreign language can be learned not only with the support of a teacher but also independently. And for this, it is enough to have a day plan based on a little diligence, firm will, and strict order.

Knowledge of a foreign language is an important factor in mastering the secrets of any profession, and acquiring skills and abilities. Knowledge of a foreign language expresses a high level of qualification of a specialist operating in any field of the national economy. That is why even if graduates of Secondary Schools have not set themselves the goal of enrolling in a higher educational institution, their in-depth study of a foreign language and mastery of free-speech skills are extremely necessary for future specialists who aim to operate in various fields of the national economy.

The conditions of relations in a foreign language, where a foreign language is considered a means of communication, cognition, information acquisition, and accumulation, determine the need to know all types of speech activity: in short, since the study of foreign languages is one of the urgent tasks of our current era, developing and recommending to them intensive methods of language teaching to the
