Annotation: The current era is referred to as the internet era. Therefore, nowadays every baby and child can use social media and learn different languages quickly. In this article, we look at the pros and cons of following children aged 2 to 6 as they learn a language on their own.

Keywords: child rearing, social media, language learning apps.

Nowadays, with the rapid development of technology, children learn to use phones and tablets from an early age. For example, children watch various videos, cartoons, or movies over the Internet. While most of these plates are in English and Chinese. We have a question as to why exactly children prefer to watch these films in these languages. The reason for this is that they are very interesting, have a nice approach to hearing aids, and are colorful enough. It's great to learn a language by watching these kinds of shows. Especially in children at this time, their worldview is expanding, vocabulary is increasing, speech is developing quickly and fluently in these languages, and beginning to pronounce words correctly, becomes proactive. At the same time, while learning the language, they get to know the way of life in foreign countries.

The other side of the coin is that you go through your tube sides; Children see a lot of cartoons and animations. At the same time, various commercials are shown, including nonsensical and obscene commercials, which have different effects on the child's inner state. In addition, using some slang words in these languages or speaking with vulgar words will affect a child's speech very quickly. Later they can use these words for example and insult their loved ones with these words. Babies who have not yet developed language also experience phenomena such as speaking another language or being afraid to speak at all. In some cases, when viewing these scenes, various sounds such as screams, laughter, and events observed during the behavior of the heroes hurt the child's upbringing. They may also later develop feelings of cowardice, lack of compassion, and self-confidence.

Language is the basis for most learning, be it factual knowledge, social skills, moral development, or physical performance. Like all achievements, big or small, a child's journey to developing language skills begins first with a responsive mother and father. You are their lucky first teachers. While not all teenagers have the same language level or pace, they all go through predictable stages of development. In addition, it is fascinating, even fascinating, to watch the evolution of the stages. Let me give you some examples to illustrate the process.

Scene 1: Snack sharing

I give 6-month-old blonde fluffy Carrie her favorite snack, dry Cheerios. As I slowly bring one to her mouth, she purses her tiny pink lips and hums, OOOO. Then she carefully grabs a Cheerio herself with thick fingers. Baby Carrie decides to be generous, puts it in my mouth, and coos, OOOOs. We repeat our game over and over until she's fed up (and I'm fed up with Cheerios). [1]

Scene 2: Car talk

On the country road, two-year-old Connor sits next to me in the back seat. As we pass a high water tower, he points and says in astonishment: Big balloon! It's a good analogy, don't you think? It's logical because, at this point in his young life, Connor can't possibly fathom a tower that holds water for a whole. [1]

Scene 3: Wordplay

Carolyn, the light-hearted teacher, says to her preschool student, » Kristi is your real name Merry Christmas?" Kristi says, "Noooo, silly." Two beats pass, then a light bulb goes off in Kristi's head. She brightly returns her teacher's tease with, «Yes, my name is Merry Christmas! But they just call me Kristi." [1]

Benefits of learning foreign languages in early childhood:

Encourages wisdom, empathy and curiosity, and cultural sensitivity;

Improves kids' brain function;

It helps to improve test scores in English. [2]

Drawbacks of language learning in early childhood

- Speaking later;
- Mixing languages;
- Bilingual education can shift a child's focus. [2]

CONCLUSION: In short, language learning is very beneficial for the child. However, we have also discussed in this article that it has its disadvantages. We can also teach children languages more naturally than over the internet. Including illustrated materials, language teaching through books is much better. The videos on the YouTube site that children are watching should also be monitored by parents from time to time.
