Abstract: Education develops society. If a person does not illuminate his path with the light of knowledge, he will remain in the street of darkness and ignorance. The light of the human heart is strengthened by knowledge and enlightenment. Knowledge creates the value of humanity. No one has yet been harmed by science. Learning is an art.

Keywords: Education, Community, language, self-reliance, national level, program, information, development, importance, teaching, education system, life.

Education, the process of formation of qualifications and skills, the main means of preparing a person for life and work. In the process of education, information is obtained and education is carried out. Education means teaching in a narrow sense. But it also refers to the process of imparting information not only in different types of educational institutions, but also in the family and other spheres. "It is clear to all of us that the cornerstone of development and the force that makes the country powerful and the nation great is science, education and training. The bright future of our country, first of all, is closely related to the education system and the education we give to our children. depends" - Shavkat Mirziyoyev. Education is the mirror of every nation. A person always seeks knowledge throughout his life. During the acquisition of knowledge, he faces various obstacles and difficulties. But in our modernized way of life, all the conditions for learning are present. In the past, the opportunities in the field of education did not exist as they do today.

Abu Nasr Farabi Several scientific achievements of the 1st middle century, the development of progressive scientific-philosophical thinking in the countries of the Near and Middle East in general are connected with his name. According to some sources, he knew more than 70 languages. This is a great result for that time. "Education doesn't change the world, it changes the people who want to change the world," said Paulo Freire. Without education, there is no future, the hope of a better, sustainable, supportive and just world for all depends on the knowledge they receive. The children of today will be the leaders of tomorrow and there is no better way to make up for the mistakes than to learn from them. Education and training should be harmonious. A thousand years ago, the great thinker Mahmud Kashgari, in his work "Devonu lug'otit turk", touched on the issues of education and morality, saying, "Time has completely decreased. Knowledge, wisdom, and purity have decreased. Bad people have increased, and virtuous people are disappearing. ", he wrote. Such views of sages who lived in different eras can be observed in the history of many peoples of the world. However, according to the development of time and society, new problems have arisen in the issue of youth education, and the tasks before educators and teachers have increased. People are not divided into good or bad as a whole. If that were the case, the issue of upbringing would be easily resolved. The struggle of good qualities and bad habits, different ideas to occupy the heart and mind of a person shows how complicated the issue of education is.

Although the word "education" has many meanings, if we proceed from national traditions, its "moral" quality first comes to mind. That's why our forefathers prioritized child morals over other types of education. Fitrat adds education to education and calls it "mental education". Also, paying serious attention to bringing a child to a healthy adulthood, i.e. "physical education", and summing up these three types of education, he simply expresses the "socialization of a person" in modern language: "...children's education means bringing up a child physically, intellectually and morally, and raising them to perfection. That is, sending them to the desert of effort and struggle, that is, to the field of life and death, armed with a strong body, sound mind and good morals." At this point, it is appropriate to dwell on the dictionary meaning of the words "education" and "education".

Even "education" is considered a component of education as "education of thought" or "education of mind" in terms of content. In general, the word education means raising young people (both physically, morally, and mentally) as a mature generation. In other words, "educated child" means a well-rounded generation. In the explanatory dictionary of the Uzbek language, it is written that the word tarbiya is an Arabic word that means a number of meanings such as "developing, nurturing, growing; teaching; imparting knowledge". When we carefully study the explanatory dictionary, the word "education" expresses a wider meaning than the word "education". The most important stage of the learning process is education. As Abdullah Awlani said: "Education is a matter of life or death, salvation or destruction, happiness or disaster." The purpose and essence of education does not change over time, it is equally important for all nations. National and universal values, traditions determine the essence of education. Today, both in the German, Russian and English schools, as well as in the Uzbek schools, the strengthening of the educational tasks of the educational institution, the cases of dissatisfaction with the "educative" activity of education are recognized by scientists.

It should be noted that there is a need to study the experiences of education-based schools and educational institutions whose main goal is to prepare students for life and socialization. At first glance, we can see from their simple greeting that the graduates of Japanese or Korean schools, where education is organized at a high level, have been educated on the basis of the national values of their people. Therefore, in the field of education, it is possible to study the scientific achievements of the countries of the world, but in education, it is impossible to retreat from national values and traditions or relegate them to the second level. It should not be forgotten that education is based on examples and exemplary practical activities. That is, if intellectual education (education) develops from simple to complex on the basis of specific programs and plans, then in education (moral education) it is necessary to instill an appropriate attitude in young people to the events taking place in society, to specific goals and results. In addition to the implementation of focused plans and programs, a creative approach, careful study of the social environment is required. Compared to intellectual education, the scope of activities of moral education and the tasks set before it are large, and the school has limited opportunities for its effective implementation. Nevertheless, it is appropriate for the educational institution to be the organizer and coordinator of the educational process. Because families educate their children not only educationally (intellectually), but morally and physically at different levels, even there are not a few parents who are not able to teach their children the rules of etiquette.

It is necessary to implement moral education in the pedagogical process, based on the requirements of continuity, as in the educational system (like state education standards). Of course, the concepts of spiritual and moral education cannot be molded, but they can be expressed in the form of requirements without being separated from life. Undoubtedly, one of the effective means in this regard is further improvement of national literature teaching. Because we should remember that our national literature has been based on manners since time immemorial. Education is a lifelong process. Everyone in life has an educational influence. As he is brought up in the school of life, as an educator, as a means of education, he serves to create a social environment. By developing the education system, the state can be developed. According to experts, the best education system in the world is in Finland. Finland is one of the developed countries of Europe. As you know, Finland is a small country located in the north of Europe. It does not have large natural resources, trade concessions or other significant sources of income. At the beginning of the 20th century, Finland was one of the poorest countries in Europe. The motto of Finnish schools is: "We prepare the child either for life or for the exam. We chose the first one." That's why in Finnish schools, the exam is given only once - when the student turns 16. The most important thing in schools is to prepare the student for an independent life. That's why they teach them to learn independently. In Finland, the profession of "teacher" is a prestigious profession. There is a huge competition for teaching in institutions of higher education. In Finland, general secondary education is free. This includes free lunch, excursions, school buses and books are included. It is forbidden to collect money from parents. In Uzbekistan, the education sector is also given great importance. In the Republic of Uzbekistan, the Law "On Education" has been formed.

Education is important in a person's life, that is, education is a ladder for a person's life. With knowledge, a person can reach great heights. Or without education and upbringing, a person becomes poorer day by day. Education and upbringing in the family become one. First of all a person cannot learn without education. The role of education in the family is important. You cannot imagine education without education, education without education. That is why our fathers and grandfathers paid a lot of attention to the education of children.

Why is education important?

There are many different concepts and definitions of what education is, but one thing that can be generally accepted is the importance of education and the reasons for it.

1. Provides stability.

Education provides stability in life and is something that no one can ever take away from you. By getting a good education and a degree, you increase your chances of getting better career opportunities and open new doors for yourself.

2. Provides financial security.

In addition to stability, education also provides financial security, especially in today's society. A good education leads to a high-paying job.

3. Ensures equality.

For the world to be truly equal, it must begin with education. If everyone was given the same opportunities for education, the gap between social classes would be smaller. Everyone can have an equal chance at high-paying jobs.

4. Provides independence.

An educated person will never be dependent on the opinion of others. He will have his own personal opinion.

5. Makes dreams come true.

In conclusion, it should be said that education is the mirror of the nation. Behind every developed country there is an education system. Attention to education and training is very important. As Jalaluddin Rumi said, "A person shows his education with his smile, and his level with what he laughs at."
